Spring break heroes

Brothers rescue trapped Shoreline resident

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Corey and Renelton Chiasson do not consider themselves heroes, but to Huewitt Parson, they are.

Parson, 31, a native of Bay St. Louis and Shoreline Park resident, was doing something he had done hundreds of times before, work on a car engine.

It was Friday, March 27, about 1:20 p.m. Parson was lying under the front end of his Camaro, attempting to change the flywheel and torque converter. The car was elevated by four stacks of cement blocks.

Parson said he was turning the torque converter when the car came down on top of him, pinning his upper body directly behind the driver's side front wheel.

"It hit me right across the chest," Parson stated. "I could feel the entire weight of the car holding me down. I tried to push and lift the car to move free, but I couldn't."

Neighbor Renelton Chiasson, 11, reported he was in his yard when he heard someone mumbling in the distance and then hollering.

"I ran down the road to his (Parson's) house," Renelton described, "and saw him lying under the car."

Renelton said at that time he flagged down his cousin, Jamie Adams, who was passing in a car.

Murder trial begins

The murder trial of Waveland resident Joe L. Jushaway began Tuesday in Natchez. It had been moved from Hancock County because of pre-trial publicity.

Jushaway, 22, is accused of killing two neighbors in 1989. He was indicted in 1990 on two counts of capital murder in the December 1989 stabbing deaths of Novella "Dobbie" Gillum, 66, and her 5-year-old granddaughter, Latrice Renee Gillum.

Capital murder carries a potential death penalty and is defined as a murder committed during the commission of another crime. Police believe robbery was the motive for the two deaths.

The trial began Tuesday with the testimony of Thomas Fore, an employee of the Long Beach gas company that sent him to the Gillum residence to install a heater. Fore was, according to an Associated Press report, the last person to see the victims alive.

Fore said he left the residence around 4:15 p.m. after installing the heater. Insurance agent Rodney Wisby, the next witness to take the stand, testified he stopped by the residence about 5:30 p.m. He said he heard the TV, but no one answered his knocks.

NAACP offers assistance to recruit black teachers

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland school board received an offer of assistance from an unexpected source Monday — the NAACP Education Committee.

The Rev. Lee Morris was the board's sole agenda requestor at its monthly meeting. When he took the floor, he explained that he and attorney Tom Clark had come to discuss with the board the possibility of getting more black school teachers into the district as role models for the students.

"We've come to help; we didn't come to hinder," Morris stressed. "We've come because we see a great need."

He asked several questions about the district's hiring practices for teachers.

He was told that applicants send their resumes and applications to the principal of the school which has the vacancy. The principal then makes his recommendations to the superintendent, who reviews them and makes his own recommendations to the school board. The school board has the right to accept a recommendation, hiring the teacher, or reject the recommendation, not hiring the teacher.

In answer to another question by Morris about district recruiters, Superintendent Robert Magee and the board told Morris that the district has no recruiter to send to colleges.

The state's school districts send out lists of vacancies and requirements for employment, which the college and university guidance counselors compile and keep in their offices, usually in a file or binder.

Interested college students who are about to graduate and apply for their teacher's licenses have access to these listings and may use them to

Leaking roofs plague HHS

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County School Board members signed a letter of complaint last week which addressed five ongoing problems at the new high school.

The letter called for architects Tompkins, Hansen, Fields and Muzzi of Jackson to appear before the board May 4 to respond to concerns.

The five areas of construction and recurrent mechanical problems are:

—Numerous roof leaks at various points including the gymnasium, the Commons, the administrative and junior high buildings;

—Grease trap discharges high amounts of grease into the Stennis Air Park's sewage collection system;

—Floor drains are not properly recessed, allowing water to stand in the kitchen area;

—Malfunction of air-conditioner chillers/condensers;

—Lift station motor failure, which has occurred twice in less than two years.

The letter includes copies of correspondence concerning the problems.

Lincoln Builders of Ruston, La., general contractor, identified the roof problems as reported by independent architect W.J. Evans of Baton Rouge, La. on November 27, 1991.

As of March 20, 1992, John Fields of Tompkins, Hansen, Fields and Muzzi requested Lincoln Builders to advise on roof work still to be completed at HHS.

Fields was notified of the grease trap problem on October 28, 1991, 13 days after notification by the Hancock Port and Harbor Commission of the treatment plant overload.

Fields was reminded on November 8, 1991 that a year had passed and still the chillers on the air-conditioning unit at HHS were not functioning properly. In September 1990 the unit's inverter motor was

ASRM funding

Project status still uncertain

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Funding for the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) project continues to rest in the hands of the House Appropriations Committee as spending for NASA is proposed.

Last week, the House Committee on Science, Space and Technology approved a three-year spending plan for NASA which included $15.25 billion for fiscal year 1993.

The committee recommended that ASRM be funded if extramoney becomes available. The final decision will be left up to the House Appropriations Committee.

Several assumptions are being made as to whether the project will receive the necessary funds to complete the $500 million rocket plant in Yellow Creek and the $50 million test facility at Stennis Space Center.

Although President Bush did not include funding for the ASRM project in his proposed budget, ASRM appears to have a chance toward survival. Project advocate and Yellow Creek representative, Mississippi Congressman Jamie Whitten, chairs the House Appropriations Committee.

Should the ASRM project become a reality, the rockets will be built in Iuka and barged down the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway to Stennis for testing.

The rockets are designed to increase shuttle payload for use in construction of Space Station Freedom and are considered less volatile than liquid fuel motors.

Steve Aftergood, an engineer with an independent space policy research and advisory group, stated, "They (the administration) know Whitten will attempt to fully fund ASRM and are leaving it to Congress to do the dirty work."

Buccaneer Park adds waterslide

BY TRACI BONNEY

No definite date or rates have been set yet for the opening of two new attractions at Buccaneer Park, according to Park Manager Greg Smith.

The attractions are a 30-foot-diameter tot pool and a two-flume 200-foot fiberglass waterslide and splash pool, both of which will be built near the wave pool. The two waterslides will descend from a 40-foot tower topped with flags which will be visible from Beach Blvd.

"We're really not sure exactly when we'll open," Smith said Wednesday. "Just yesterday the change order went through to fund the ticket booth."

In addition to building the two new water attractions, the park is fencing off the 12-year-old wave pool and a nearby pavilion. The whole water area will be named the Buccaneer Bay Water Park.

Construction of the tot pool and slides is expected to delay the opening of the wave pool at least until the end of May, Smith said.

Total construction cost for the additions is about $460,000. The State Legislature approved funding for the expansion in 1990.

NASA administrator tours Stennis

BY T. H. (DOC) TOUPS

NASA director Daniel S. Goldin visited Stennis Space Center Tuesday morning as part of an inspection tour of NASA facilities around the country. On the job only eight days, the former TRW Space and Technology Group general manager challenged Stennis to be "best in the world at testing large propulsion systems and engines."

During a press conference immediately after his tour, Goldin surprised many in attendance by not expressing unconditional support of the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor program or the rocket assembly plant in Iuka, Miss.

NASA has been fighting a protracted battle over the ASRM issue with local environmental groups and others opposed to the program.

When asked whether or not he supported ASRM, he replied, "Well, it's premature to say whether I support or don't support ASRM. What I would like to do is understand the benefits of ASRM, the costs involved, how it relates to the NASA mission, where it stands—and those questions have to be answered before one takes a position."

He affirmed and endorsed the leadership of Vice President Dan Quayle and the National Space Council in defining national space policy.

"I'm thrilled that we have a President and a Vice-President who put so much emphasis on space," he said.

When asked if Stennis' role in NASA was secure, he said, "I would hope so, but before I open my mouth and make a commitment, I don't believe in hip shooting. And that isn't to say there's a problem for Stennis and that doesn't say there's a very secure future. I think it's OK." He stressed that he was reluctant to expound on parti-

After parking the car, Adams ran into Parson's home to call 911-emergency. Remelton left for the corner of Avenue B and Artic Street to direct the police and ambulance.

As this sequence of events was taking place, Remelton's 15-year-old brother, Corey, hearing the commotion from the Chiassons' yard, walked to Parson's house to see what was going on.

Corey said he saw Parson lying under the car. Parson told Corey to get a jack that was lying some distance from the car in a ditch.

Corey retrieved the jack and placed it under the car as Parson instructed him. Up went the car, and out slid Parson.

Parson continued, "I stayed on the ground until Remelton returned with help."

Parson was brought to Hancock Medical Center, where he was hospitalized for six days. He suffered a torn spleen, two fractured ribs, a dislocated collar bone, bruises and cuts.

He added his hospitalization was primarily for observation and testing of the spleen.

"I was lucky, lucky that they were out there that day," Parson commented. "You know, they were home on spring break. Any other day, I might have been under there for quite a while."

"I am very thankful they were home that day."

Remelton, a student at Gulfview Elementary School, and Corey, a student at Hancock High School, find no great heroism in what they did for Parson. Both young men said they just acted as fast as they could to help him, adding there was really no time to think about it.

Since that day, Parson's car was repaired by friends. He spends his days waiting for permission to return to his job in New Orleans East at Paxton Beautiful Wood, a Hardwood Lumber Company affiliate.

As far as future home repairs on his automobile, he added, "I don't think I'm going to do that again, unless I have some ramps or something to hold it securely."

"It was a freak accident, but one I won't forget."

make applications to the district they choose.

Morris also asked the board what the percentage of black to white teachers is in the district. The board did not have the figures readily available, not expecting to be asked the question, but Morris told them that by his count the district has 11 black teachers. Later in the discussion, Magee told Morris that he estimates the district has about 134 teachers.

This means the district has a ratio of less than 10 percent black teachers to 90 percent white, while the black/white/other minority student ratio is about 20/78/2 percent, according to school district figures. To make the teacher race ratio equal that of the students, the district would need to have 27 black teachers and three of Oriental, Hispanic or Native American descent.

However, as both school board president Linda Penrose and secretary Dominica Favre pointed out, the district's main problem has been a lack of minority applicants. When Morris asked the board if they would allow the NAACP to help attract applicants, Penrose said, "We'd love to. I hope you can get us a bunch. It helps when we have a lot to choose from. Thank you for being interested."

Cramer, stated the science committee's action as "a tough fight with significant wins and minimal losses."

Cramer has proposed an amendment which tries to ensure that the rocket program be placed on NASA's list of projects to fund if extra money is available.

The amendment protects full funding for ASRM if Congress earmarks at least $15.25 billion for NASA in 1993, and provides $80 million for construction and $260 million for development if NASA receives more than $14.3 billion.

All money for ASRM development is presently optional.

Projects the science committee gave top, must-fund priority include Space Station Freedom and the space shuttle. The committee recommended a $14.3 billion budget for those and other considered crucial to NASA's mission.

The entire House is expected to consider the NASA budget in May.

ARMED ROBBERY

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson reported the arrest Friday of a Pearlinton man in connection with the attempted armed robbery of a Pearlinton woman.

Peterson said Jason Everett Garcia, 21, of White Road, Pearlinton was arrested as he fled the home of Cora Collins, 43, following a robbery attempt during which Collins claimed to be threatened with a knife.

He continued, Collins stated Garcia was in her house when he demanded money from her, and when she refused he picked up a knife and threatened her, continuing his demands for money. Collins said she screamed for assistance from her son, Marshall Collins, who was home and in another room. The son was reported to have called out that he was telephoning the police and Garcia ran from the house.

Peterson said Garcia was later arrested at his home.

As of Tuesday, Garcia remained in Hancock County Justice Facility on a $50,000 bond.

Peterson stated an attempted armed robbery conviction holds a maximum of 20 years in jail.

A Hancock Medical Center spokesperson reported Tuesday that Collins had been admitted to the hospital Monday and remains in stable condition.

Peterson commented that it was the Sheriff Department's understanding that she was suffering from emotional stress following the robbery attempt.

Easter sunrise services are being held on Sunday morning at several of the community's churches.

The annual Community Sunrise Service will be held at 6:30 a.m. on Sunday on the lawn of Christ Episcopal Church, 912 S. Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis.

Coffee and donuts will be provided by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce with Pat Cucullu serving as hostess.

I am hoping there will be a large turnout for this very important Easter service.

Help is needed for the newly-formed Bay Area Babe Ruth Baseball League in two team sponsors and one coach.

This is baseball and softball time for our youngsters and sponsors and coaches are very important for our leagues to be successful.

For further information call 467-1266 or 467-2547. Remember, the leagues involve youngsters from the Bay-Waveland and county areas.

On Saturday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. members of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139 will be selling Poppies at the Winn-Dixie and Mark-e-Town shopping centers.

Proceeds are used for our veterans, and I hope everyone will be generous.

This is the time of year ball games of all types are underway, or, about to begin.

One of the observations I have been making of ball-parks is the amount of litter on the grounds.

It seems to me that litter control should also be one of the items our youngsters are taught along with sports-manship, etc.

Our county has a goal of being Litter Free '93, and it is going to take the efforts of everyone.

I plead with all coaches and team managers to ask our boys and girls to remember to discard litter properly. Thank you!

Initiative and referendum amended bill fails by 4 votes

The House of Representatives focused attention last week on bills passed earlier by the Senate, including such wide-ranging matters as adult literacy, school bus safety, drivers' license fees, and a proposed limit on the Lieutenant Governor's terms.

Numerous other bills also cleared the House in a whirlwind of floor action as the session headed into its final weeks.

The House narrowly approved a proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit the Lieutenant Governor from serving more than two back-to-back terms, although he still could sit out a term and then run again. The proposal would be placed on the November election ballot if it receives final legislative approval.

The House gave final approval to two other constitutional amendments to present to the voters this fall. One proposal would restrict the salary paid to the Lieutenant Governor when called on to serve as acting Governor, entitling him to the same pay as the chief executive during the Governor's absence. But, he would not continue to draw his own salary as well as now provided.

Another amendment would give the Legislature more flexibility in determining the number of circuit and chancery court districts in the state, removing a present limitation of not more than 20 districts.

A modified initiative and referendum proposal failed by four votes to get the two-thirds majority required for adoption. The resolution, if ratified, would have let voters initiate constitutional amendments by petition instead of the traditional legislative process. A motion to reconsider the proposal was filed in the House.

There was brisk debate on an amended measure designating the State Board of Community and Junior Colleges, in cooperation with the Department of Education, to coordinate adult literacy programs. The bill spells out that adult education programs administered by the Education Department will continue until at least July 1, 1994, with no reduction in funding.

Other bills gaining House passage would boost drivers' license fees from $13 to $20 for a four-year period with the extra money going to the Highway Patrol; give the State Education Department additional powers to condemn unsafe school buses and provide criminal penalties for school officials who permit operation of an unsafe bus;

Strengthen penalties for fraudulent use of credit cards; create a new 14-member board to establish minimum training standards for fire fighters; allow the Health Department to collect fees for performing water quality tests required by the federal Safe Drinking Water law; and let wildlife conservation officers keep their sidearms when they retire if they pay the fair market price for the weapons.

Another House-passed bill would make it illegal to willfully and maliciously follow or harass another person. Conviction of "stalking" would carry a maximum penalty of up to six months imprisonment and/or a $1,000 fine, with stiffer penalties for subsequent convictions.

A number of bills failed to survive an April 7 deadline for committee action on general bills passed by the other chamber. Among the House bills that died in Senate committees were proposals to establish a state grand jury to investigate major drug violations, overhaul lobbying laws, and limit compensation of chancery and circuit clerks to not more than the Governor's salary.

Senate bills dying in House committees included a modified version of the widely publicized welfare reform bill, a proposal to revise various election laws including provisions dealing with absentee ballots, and a hotly debated bill regarding the Commission on Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

By Governor Kirk Fordice

The governor of Mississippi has many responsibilities

Someone once said, "If you ever meet an elected official who is extremely popular—he's probably not doing anything."

Well, if that's the case, I must be accomplishing a great deal. I am not very popular with certain groups in this state. This would probably bother me if I didn't know I was doing what the people of Mississippi elected me to do.

The Office of the Governor has many responsibilities other than signing law and implementing policy. A governor is elected to bring to the forefront issues that the People of Mississippi feel are important.

For years everybody has talked about bureaucracy, everybody has talked about trimming a bloated state government; now I come into office and start actually doing something about it and the fireworks begin! Well, I'm not about to stop, and the entrenched powers are worried.

Less than a month after I was inaugurated as governor I was forced, by law, to cut the state's budget because of faulty revenue projections from the year before. I provided twice the level of protection to the education budget as was granted virtually any other line item in the budget.

I also immediately looked for a solution so Mississippi's children would never be put in a similar situation again. I am fighting for fiscal reform legislation to provide our state's budget with a cushion so future cuts won't be necessary. Now I'm going to work on the education system itself. All this is for the benefit of our state's children, including my grandchildren.

In an effort to save their administrative jobs, the bureaucrats have waged a propaganda war against me to scare teachers into looking for blame instead of looking for solutions. They blame me for imprudent measures taken in local school districts to meet budget restraints.

They leave out the fact that I advised the Department of Education to meet cuts by cutting administration and not by affecting the classroom. My advice was not heeded. Allow me to give an example that does not represent all of our schools but deserves examination nonetheless.

I recently visited a kindergarten through 12 grade school. I was informed the school had six principals! This same school is making plans to cut off air conditioners during the sweltering spring and summer heat! I think I've found the "mystery money" everyone is looking for to aid our education system—it's already in the education bureaucracy.

I didn't just happen to learn what is wrong with education funding in our state by working in the construction business, I was educated on the subject by hundreds of teachers from around our state—the same ones who teach our children every day. Many of our teachers know the facts and are not giving in to the "status quo." They are standing firm with me for more efficient spending and more attention to our children.

The people of Mississippi have given me their full support as well in this effort to restore our education priorities to the classroom rather than the boardrooms.

As long as I'm here, I will fight raising taxes as a political solution for every problem we face. We must capitalize on the attention and discussion the education issue is getting now to focus ourselves on positive change.

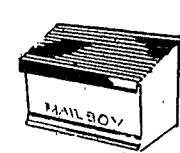

I declared war on entrenched, unresponsive government three months ago—the first battle on that front will be the most important—the battle to save our schools.

Celebration of Easter as Christian holiday questioned

To the Editor:

Easter poses many questions for Christians who have read their Bibles. If it doesn't, it certainly should.

Where does Easter come from? Why do Christians celebrate it? Is it really the observance of the resurrection? Why eggs and rabbits? What is the significance and origin of the sunrise service? Where does the word "Easter" come from anyway?

As a matter of fact, the resurrection is the only Biblical connection Easter has. Where, then, do these traditions come from? An investigation of pagan practices prior to the time of Jesus provides us with all of the answers.

The Babylonian goddess of fertility is "Ishtar," whose festival is in spring. Eggs and rabbits are pagan symbols of fertility, as is spring worship of the sun when the earth begins to reproduce.

As this paganism spread west, the Phoenicians called Ishtar "Astarte" and kept the same pagan rituals. Today, Christians keep Ishtar and Astarte alive in the feast of "Easter," which does not appear in the Bible except for once (Acts 12:4) where it deceptively replaces the word "passover."

Are Christians justified in observing the great resurrection of Jesus in pagan ways?

"Take heed that you do not inquire after their gods, saying, 'How did these nations serve their gods? Even so will I do likewise.' You shall not do so unto the Lord your God..." (Deut. 12:30). The answer is "certainly not!"

When Christians rise up early on "Ishtar" morning and worship before the rising sun, they affront and reject the God whose Bible they carry in their hands.

"You shall see greater abominations than these... and he brought me into the inner court of the Lord's house, and behold... 25 men with their backs to the temple of the Lord, and their faces toward the east; and they worshiped the sun toward the east" (Ezekiel 8:15).

If Easter is so abominable to God, then why don't Christian shepherds warn their sheep about it? The answer is that Easter is popular, and people won't pay to hear unpopular things. However it is far better to affront men than to affront God. Questions about Easter are important to ask. The answers, although unpopular, need to be made known.

Forget tax increase and decrease spending

To the Editor:

Our wonderful state senators have done it again. They have managed to pass a bill to increase taxes. They are trying to look like nice guys by saying this will lower our car tags and property taxes.

No matter how you look at it, this is a tax increase, not a tax decrease.

First, I don't understand the purpose of increasing state taxes and decreasing local taxes, only to have the state give the local government the money. The state government needs to let the local government take care of their own taxes. In the real world when business is conducted through a middleman, the state in this case, the service always costs more.

Second, a sales tax is a regressive tax. It hurts those who can least afford to pay. A state as poor as Mississippi does not need to continue increasing taxes on people with small fixed incomes. There is no way for anyone, no matter how low their income, to not pay sales tax. People who have small fixed incomes, however, can buy inexpensive cars. They can regulate how much tax they pay for a car tag.

Third, we hear that our sales tax could go up to 7 1/2 cents on every dollar by July 1994. What they don't tell us is that this amounts to almost a 21 percent increase in the amount of sales tax you pay.

It is time to freeze tax increases and decrease spending to balance the budget.

Three cheers for Tommy Golt, the only Coast senator who voted against the bill, and also for Governor Fordice who said he would veto the bill.

Senator Vic Frankiewicz said 'this was a compromise all of us could live with.'

Well, I hope he was talking about the legislature and not his constituents, because I haven't spoken to anyone who wants tax increases. (I hope our representatives in the House keep this in mind.)

"The Mississippi Business Hall of Fame was created to accomplish two important objectives—to recognize outstanding business leaders for their innumerable contributions to Mississippi and to showcase role models for Mississippi's youth," commented Rick Murray, president of Junior Achievement.

Irby is chairman of the board of Irby Construction Company, which has $50 million in annual sales and employs 600, and Stuart C. Irby Company, which

In service to Mississippi, Seal has held positions on councils and task forces under Governors Williams, Winter, Allain and Finch.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

A glistening glazed baked ham has long been the preferred meat for the Easter feast at many a Southern table, at times further embellished with a "stuffing" of well-seasoned bread or mixed chopped greens, according to the customs and tastes of the household.

Others prefer lamb, another time-honored tradition. The early Jewish custom at Passover was to sacrifice the Paschal lamb. In the Old World, the lamb was the ancient symbol of the coming of Spring. Its flesh was eaten at religious festivals, including the Jewish Passover and the Orthodox Greek Easter feast. For years, of course, lamb was available only in spring-time, which made it the ideal dish for the feast.

The ham tradition has its roots in the pre-Christian era, in connection with the welcome advent of Spring with its feasting. Later, England's King Richard III used the boar as his heraldic symbol, thus the ham became a centerpiece of the Easter feast.

Whether you choose lamb or ham, or turkey or chicken of beef, you'll be sure to find a kind and size of "whatever" to suit your taste. My ham choices through the years have ranged from an elegant "all-out" offering of a stuffed baked ham to simply baked and basted hams or half-hams on down to ham slices.

At times I have followed the way Maryland and Virginia cooks "stuff" a ham, as good to look at as it is to eat. Simply cut deep slits down the length of the ham from the shank to the end of the bone. Then, cut deep slits or gashes across the ham just two or three inches apart. Into these slits stuff as much of a "greens" mixture as you can and bake the ham. (Celery, green onions, parsley, chives and such, well-chopped and seasoned with salt and pepper, make up the "stuffing.")

One of my favorite ways is a recipe which is said to have been that of Patrick Henry's mother, and comes from the "River Road" cookbook. If you're on very good terms with your butcher, ask him to remove the bone from half a ham (or struggle with it yourself) and stuff the hole with this:

STUFFING
1/3 cup vinegar
2 eggs
1 medium onion, chopped
1 cup bread crumbs
2 Tblsp. celery seed
1 Tblsp. dry mustard
1/2 cup white sugar
Red, black pepper to your taste

(Dash of sage may be added, if desired)

Mix all ingredients together. After stuffing ham and tying together with cord, bake in your usual way. It's colorful on the buffet table, with its contrasting mustard-colored dressing and rosy-pink ham slices.

Or, you may prefer a sweeter dressing, as in:

STUFFED

Ham, turkey, lamb grace Easter tables

HAM SLICES
2 smoked ham slices, or other ham slices, 1/2-inch thick
4 cups (from 4 slices) soft bread cubes
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/2 cup raisins
Pinch of dry mustard, or dash of prepared mustard, according to taste
1/2 cup melted butter or margarine
Cloves
Several slices canned pineapple, optional

Place one ham slice in a baking dish, and spoon the stuffing over it. Top with second ham slice and insert whole cloves around the edges of the ham slice. Arrange pineapple slices on surface, reserving the juice for basting. Bake, uncovered, at 300 degrees for an hour, or a bit more or less as needed. Drip juice and red wine over during baking time. Garnish with parsley. (4 to 6 servings.)

For a tangier dressing, more to my taste, mix up bread cubes or crumbs, mustard, dashes of black pepper and cayenne, along with a little chopped onion, dash of Tabasco and an egg or so to bind it all together, or whatever, and spread this on the lower ham slice before topping with second slice.

Valerie's Rosebuds blossom in the Bay

BY TRACI BONNEY

If you buy any of Valerie Furst's Rosebuds, be warned: they're a tad too big to put in a vase.

Rosebuds, one of several artsy products of Absolute Originals by Val, take the Cabbage Patch doll a step further. Call 'em Cabbage Patch Grandmas.

The life-size soft sculpture dolls actually come in two main varieties: Grannies and Housewives. Each one is truly unique: she has a name of her own, and comes with her own outfit, accessories, magazines, books, candy boxes and other stuff.

Valerie, a recent transplant from Huntsville, Ala., to Pass Christian, spends about 22 hours making each Rosebud. Then, more time and money go into finding and buying just the right clothes and other trappings from flea markets.

For her interview, Valerie brought with her Mamie, one of her grannies. Mamie is a colorful lady, with a daisy print-on-pink-background dress, a scarf, shawl, gloves and pillbox-type hat, and a black purse and shoes.

Valerie said many Rosebud purchasers don't realize it, but even the purses are personalized. Mamie's contained a variety of items, including Tic Tacs, a couple of Louisiana scratch-and-win lottery tickets (already scratched, of course), tissue and an empty cigarette package.

Housewives come equipped with hair rollers, yellow rubber gloves, fuzzy slippers, a candy box, astrology and entertainment magazines, a plastic dish scrubber and a feather duster — and sometimes, even a plastic fly perched on the duster.

"Each one truly is an individual, with a personality of her own that develops from the clothes, wigs and accessories I put on her," Valerie commented. "I don't do any two alike; I couldn't duplicate one, even if I tried."

"My Rosebuds make good car companions for people who travel alone. When I'm delivering one to a buyer, and I have her sitting in the front seat with me, I feel a little safer."

"That may sound strange, but it really isn't. Especially from the back, my dolls look so real that I've actually had people scold me for leaving them in the car with the windows rolled up on hot days."

"Once I stopped at a store, and someone came up to me and told me, 'Do you realize you have an elderly woman in your car with no ventilation?'"

Rosebuds also are fun to have around the house, Valerie said. "It's great to have one just sitting around, and they're really fun at parties."

"They also make good promoters for businesses. If you have a business, you can just sit one of these ladies outside the store, and people will stop to look at her."

Valerie and Mamie

In fact, Valerie was taking one of her Rosebuds, a housewife named Gertrude, to a local business after the interview. Later, Mamie was spotted outside another local business; she had found a home.

Valerie has been making and selling her Rosebuds on and off about 10 years. Prices start at $125.

Valerie also makes adult and teen novelty jewelry, paints t-shirt outfits, and has started trying her hand at decorative furniture painting.

First Bingo, Inc. does NOT operate ANYBingo games. ALL games are conducted by various bonafied, Mississippi-based, charitable organizations ONLY. ALL proceeds go to these organizations.

ANY organization conducting Bingo games at First Bingo, Inc. MUST use the adopted house rules. They were implemented for the benefit of the charities and players, alike. There are several bills in Jackson that are going to effect charitable Bingo; it is our intention to pre-empt these changes and formulate house rules regarding charitable gaming and indicate our willingness to cooperate with the State Gaming Commission.

The house rules are as follows:

1] The reverse side of our flyers bearing numbers one through seventy-five must be used to confirm the numbers called during each Bingo game.

2] A minimum of one winning sheet per game will be placed under the camera for all players to confirm.

3] The master books on the stage should be used to verify the serial number on the winner's card, especially for the winners on Bonanza and Black-out.

4] No one working the organization's game will be permitted to take part in playing Bingo during that session.

5] A pull tab seller cannot sell to a member of their immediate family.

6] A worker should not verify a Bingo for a member of their immediate family.

7] Workers selling pull tabs are not allowed to purchase pull tabs during or after the session.

8] All customers must pay the minimum buy in to play any Bingo games. All half time sales should be made only after their registration slip is verified.

9] The format of the individual game should not be altered; no extra wild balls added to games.

10] The hot ball option is paid for by the players deductions from their pot should be limited to expenses only.

Your cooperation in implementing these rules will be deeply appreciated.

Rocks race for fifth division title

Special to the Echo
The St. Stanislaus track team is out to set a school record fifth consecutive division championship in high school track and field.

The team has participated in four meets this year, coming in first in two and second in two. The only team to defeat the Rocks so far is 5A power Ocean Springs.

Unbeaten for the Rocks this year are sophomores Neil Heitzmann (400M dash), Drew Scaife (800M run) and Todd Black (pole vault).

Heitzmann has run a personal best of 52.7 in the 400M run and Scaife has run a 2:04 in the 800M. Black has vaulted 11'0" in the pole vault and 12'0" in practice.

Also running for the Rocks are the relay teams. The 400M team of Brandon Rhodes, Murat Hatipoglu, Mickey Quinlan and Trent Terrell has run a best of 45.0 in the event.

The 800M relay team of Rhodes, Mike Lee, Quinlan and Terrell has run a best of 1:34.1

the baton along smoothly. In practice, they have moved the baton better than any sprint team I've had here.

"We train in the belief that we can beat four faster sprinters in the relays by being the best we can in the exchanges."

Other team members having good performances are Bryce Gex (300M hurdles), Chris Kehoe (3200M, 1600M and 800M runs) and Gene Moran (high jump). Freshmen expecting to be moved up to the varsity team for the division meet include Scott Black (1600M run), Vince Moran (high jump) and Alex Perez (long jump).

The junior high also has done well this season, finishing second in three meets and third in one. Excelling for the junior high are Scott Black and David Bell in the distance events, Sonny Schindler in the pole vault and 400M run, and Vince Moran in the high jump (with a school record of 6'4").

"Track and field is a very demanding sport," Ramsey include Lloyd Boubreaux (300M hurdles), Gilly Chamberlain (3200M run), Ashton Feehan (sprinter), Brett Heitzmann and Cameron Little (shot put), Collins Hymel and Heath Martinsen (long jump, triple jump), Peter Ritten, Kevin McKnight (pole vault), Brian Matherne and Peter Martinez (discus, shot put), Marc Gina (discus), John McGaha and George Kerner (sprinters).

Junior high members include Judd Deaton (400M run), John Nguyen, Todd Weatherspoon, Eugene Schmidt, Ross Hailey (sprinters); James Wadsworth and Cory Ray (hurdles), Jack Hart and Anthony Tran (shot put and discus).

"This is a very special group of kids and we all care about them and enjoy coaching them," Ramsey commented.

Assisting Ramsey (who is in charge of the sprinters) are Andy Kivlan (distance events) and Ken Lyons (field events).

"As always, Coach Kivlan and Coach Lyons do an excellent job and they are a big reason for the success of this program," Ramsey stated.

The junior high squad had its conference meet Monday at SSC, while the high school team has its district preliminaries April 20, 4:30 p.m., at Hancock High School.

Pole vaulter Todd Black

The 1600M team of Claudio Rivero, Jason Parker, Scaife and Heitzmann has run a best of 3:38.6. Lee may also run the 1600 as well.

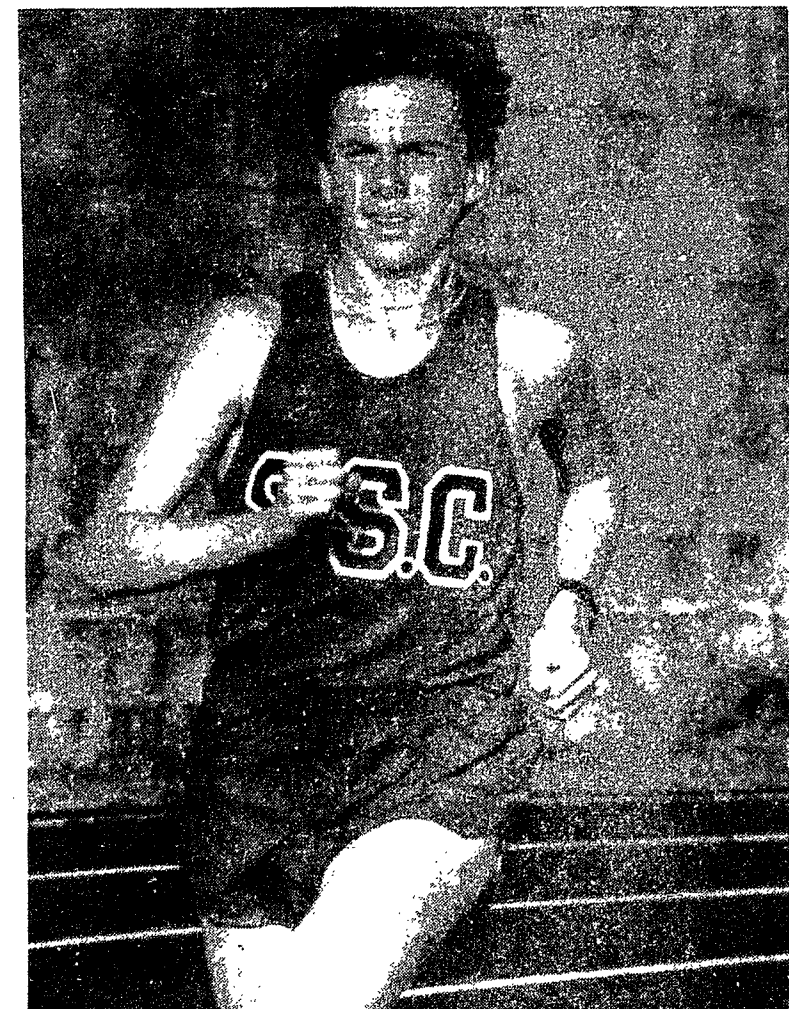

The 400M and 1600M teams are after the school records this season.

Head coach Larry Ramsey said, "The relay teams have been working very hard in perfecting their handoffs. They take personal pride in moving said. "It takes a special type of athlete to participate in the sport. It is physically very demanding and a lot of kids will give it up."

"We start every year with around 80 kids between high school and junior high, and now we are down to 26 on the varsity team and 13 on the junior high team. The people we have left carry the team very well."

Old Timers' Day

Sen. Trent Lott to be honored at Stennis Space Center alumni reunion

NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center will host its fifth annual Old Timers' Day celebration in conjunction with a special 30th anniversary reunion of Stennis alumni beginning at 4 p.m. May 15 at the SSC Cypress House Pavilion.

U.S. Sen. Trent Lott will be this year's special honoree, in recognition of his long association with and staunch support of NASA and Stennis Space Center.

Mack Herring, Stennis Space Center historian and 31-year veteran of the space program, said, "We are making every effort to invite all former government and contractor employees to this year's special reunion.

"We know there are a large number of people still living in the area who have worked for NASA, the Corps of Engineers, General Electric, North American, Rockwell, Rocketdyne, Boeing, Global, Pan Am, Sverdrup, Martin Marietta and construction/maintenance contractors.

"We also want our community friends who have had a close association with the center to come out and join in the fellowship."

Local mayors, supervisors, representatives and community leaders are also invited.

The event commemorates the anniversary of the first tree cutting May 17, 1963, which marked the beginning of construction for the NASA facility.

Old Timers' Day recognizes employees and retirees who contributed to the construction, rocket testing and varied environmental and oceanographic work accomplished since the early years of the Apollo program when the center was called the Mississippi Test Facility.

Plaques will be awarded to "old timers" who, upon retirement this past year, had completed 20 or more years of service at Stennis. Certificates will be given to retirees with 10 or more years of service.

In addition, special patches designed by Stennis Space Center artist Charlie Swan, featuring the "gator" mascot, will be available to attendees.

A "history roundtable" will be an added activity this year. A panel of retirees, employees and community leaders has been selected to lead a discussion of the center's rich, 30-year history. All Old Timers' Day participants are invited to attend this "roundtable" discussion.

Crawfish, hot dogs, hamburgers and beverages will be served at the pavilion following the ceremonies. Retirees and employees with 20 or more years of service may attend free of charge. All others may attend for a $3 donation.

The annual reunion was initiated five years ago by the Mechanical and Plumbing Performance Team of Johnson Controls World Services Inc., the NASA facility operations and support services contractor at SSC, to honor retirees and current employees who have contributed to the many successes of the center and to foster good will and support from center alumni and the local communities.

For more information or to make reservations for this year's special activities, contact Cindy Kenny by May 4 at 688-1135.

The Rev. Lowry

St. Thomas Episcopal calls first woman rector

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Episcopal community in Diamondhead has been breaking new ground for years, so when it came time for St. Thomas Church to find a new rector, the congregation's choice came as no surprise.

The Rev. Linda Lowry is the church's second rector and its first female priest, as well as the first female rector in Mississippi.

The church was started almost 10 years ago after several Episcopalians residing in Diamondhead answered an advertisement in the Diamondhead News and met on August 29, 1982 and October 17 that same year.

The first official service was held December 5, 1982, by the Rev. Charles R. Johnson in the Aloha Room of the Diamondhead Country Club. Before the service, the 23 members settled on a name for their new church: St. Thomas.

After several meetings with diocese officials, a change in service schedules and the replacement of Fr. Johnson with the Rev. Roy C. Bascom, the church broke ground for its own building June 17, 1984. Construction of the church began that fall.

The church received mission status from the Diocesan Council January 25, 1985, and held its first service Palm Sunday (March 31) that year.

In April of 1985, Bishop Duncan M. Gray Jr. dedicated and consecrated St. Thomas Episcopal Church. Later that year (in August) the Rev. Meredith Jones Spencer became vicar and shared his services with St. Patrick's of Long Beach. He became vicar of St. Thomas full time in 1987.

In 1989, the Rev. Barry L. Cotter became the church's first rector, bringing the Mission of St. Thomas to full parish status.

When Rev. Cotter left earlier this year to move to St. Peter's-by-the-Lake in Brandon, the church underwent a vacancy consultation period, a time when the members meet with the bishop of the diocese, evaluate their needs as a parish and decide what kind of priest they want, Mrs. Lowry said.

During this consultation period, the church has what she called "supply priests" or visiting priests. Mrs. Lowry was one of those supply priests.

"Within two weeks we were talking contracts," she said. "It's unusual that a vacancy is filled that fast."

After hearing Mrs. Lowry preach, the congregation called her to be their rector, and she agreed. She has been at the church officially since March 15.

"I think it's wonderful to be here. It's a healthy parish, one that wants to grow. We have active lay people."

"It's really a joy to be here."

Rev. Linda Lowry

Mrs. Lowry was ordained in 1988 to the diaconate. She served her first year of priesthood at St. James Episcopal Church in Jackson.

She holds two masters' degrees from the University of Northern Colorado, one in psychology and one in human communications. Her master of divinity degree is from the School of Theology at the University of the South, an Episcopal seminary in Tennessee. She is currently working toward her doctorate from the university.

Mrs. Lowry said she grew up in a church atmosphere.

"When I was a baby, about 18 months old, I had pneumonia and was put into what we would now call a neonatal intensive care unit. I had been given what we used to call 'last rites,' so I was expected to die."

"My maternal grandmother told me later that God had kept me alive for a special reason, so when I was a young girl I began trying to figure out what it was."

"My grandfather was a sextant, a church maintenance person, and he sang in the church choir. My parents also were both active in the church. I was a church mouse, basically."

She had been exposed to the clergy, especially the Sisterhood of Mt. Carmel, who worked in the Mt. Carmel Hospital near her childhood home in Columbus, Ohio, and had almost decided to become a nun, "until I met my husband, who was my high school sweetheart."

In 1976, it became possible for women to be ordained, and Mrs. Lowry began considering in earnest a career in the clergy. At that time she worked at NORAD as a communications officer for the Air Force.

Both she and her husband are Air Force reserve officers at Keesler AFB. Mrs. Lowry is a chaplain with the 403rd Airlift Wing, and husband James (Jim) is a navigator with the Keesler Storm Trackers. He is also a computer programmer and analyst, a licensed lay reader and very active in the church.

The reverend said her husband has adjusted well to being a "clergy spouse."

"He enjoys it, I think. We've done this together. This is new, so there have been times when it's been difficult, but he likes it."

Her current work at the church includes getting ready for Easter.

"Last week was Palm Sunday, so we had Bishop Coadjutor Marble here, and Honky the Donkey also."

"Since this is Holy Week, we have services Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and three on Sunday. We'll be doing an ecumenical sunrise service along with the community church at 6:30 a.m., then two more services on our own."

Future programs include church instruction classes for adults and children, and a children's Sunday School program is currently in progress. Plans are also in the works for a summer school program for the children.

"We also plan to offer more services, more opportunities for Bible study and worship."

Hourin home the setting for St. Thomas Silver Tea

The women of St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Diamondhead will honor their new rector, the Reverend Linda Lowry, the first woman Episcopal rector in Mississippi, at a Silver Tea on Thursday, April 23 from 3-6 p.m. The tea will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Hourin, 668 Hale Court in Diamondhead.

Mrs. John Smart, president of the St. Thomas Episcopal Church Women, is chairman of the event. Other chairmen include Mrs. Frank King and

Mrs. Bruce Pennington, refreshments; Mrs. Herbert Garner and Mrs. John Carter, invitations; Mrs. Buck Rogers, clean-up; Mrs. James Hourin, decorations; Mrs. John Stewart, hostess/server; Mrs. Clark Webster and Mrs. James Brumfield, publicity; Mrs. George Cassis, special arrangements.

Donations at the door will benefit the Bacot Home for Youth in Pascagoula, a temporary home for children from dysfunctional families; St. Michael's Farm for Boys near Picayune, whose efforts are dedicated to giving deserving boys a second chance; and other local charities, such as The Gulf Coast Women's Center in Biloxi, a temporary retreat for abused women and children.

Of particular interest is the Hourin home. Mr. and Mrs. Hourin, designers of the house, were also contractors. Built in 1978 for a family with three boys, the house reflects the personalities and lifestyle of the Hourins. The house, of natural cedar siding, is situated on an acre of wooded land which faces the 17th hole of The Pine Golf Course in Diamondhead.

The house is spacious with room for entertaining, living and privacy. It is a split level with a large game room and three bedrooms on the lower level; the master suite and living areas are on the upper.

All of the living areas face the golf course, and outside are decks, patios and a jacuzzi, all of which are screened from the street.

The Hourins have lived and traveled in many places; their home is filled with an eclectic collection of things from all over the world set against natural, contemporary furnishings.

The public is invited to attend the Silver Tea. There will be directional signs for parking between the Lanai Condos and the club entrance. From there a shuttle will be provided for visitors' convenience.

In the spirit of spring, some of the members are wearing Easter bonnets. Guests are invited to join in the festive feeling.

Hats 'n flowers

Hourin, are Bette Smart (left), president of the St. Thomas Episcopal Church Women and chairman of the Tea; hostess and decorations chairman Patty Hourin; and special arrangements chairman Mary Cassis. for his work in urban evangelism and housing initiatives and serves on the boards of several civic, ecclesiastical, business and academic institutions.

The church will provide lunch in the fellowship hall and in the halls of surrounding churches from noon to 1 at a cost of $5 per person. Committee reports and discussion will bring the afternoon to a close at 3:30.

Puppet show at HNCE emphasizes reading skills and moral qualities

BY T. H. (DOC) TOUPS

The Bayou Town puppet troupe arrived at Hancock North Central Elementary School last week to present their "I Like To Read" program to students. Kindergarten through sixth grade pupils watched the show, which was presented as part of the school's celebration of National Library Week.

Bayou Town is the creation of New Orleans native Cherie Schadler, who uses puppets designed by Judy Melton. Cherie works on the program with her husband, Ron Schadler, and puppeteer Vicky Young.

In addition to live performances, the troupe also produces a TV show of the same name. This is currently shown on New Orleans' cable access channel, according to the Schadlers.

"We always try to teach morality," said Cherie. She explained Bayou Town is presented in both Christian and secular formats; but the themes of honesty and integrity are common to both. Monday's presentation was the secular version.

Sponsors of the performance were Alcan Cable, Coast Electric, Dedeaux Community Grocery, Diamondhead Supermarket, Dolly's, Fr. A.C. Denis Council Knights of Columbus, GE Plastics, Hancock Bank-Bay St. Louis and Sverdrup.

Organizations interested in hosting the Bayou Town presentation may contact the Schadlers at 255-7497.

It's show time!

Grant to fund symphony visit to rural schools

The Mississippi Symphony Orchestra Association, Jackson, has been awarded a $6,500 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, according to Senators Trent Lott and Thad Cochran.

The grant will be used to support a statewide educational program to bring the Mississippi Symphony Orchestra to rural communities and schools.

The program is designed to schedule concerts in libraries, town halls and schools in communities of 40,000 citizens or fewer. And, it is targeted largely toward rural county school systems and schools which have not experienced a Mississippi Symphony Orchestra performance or related ensembles.

The grant is made on a 50/50 matching basis.

Wasson attends U.S. Space Camp

Michael Wasson of Waveland trained for a space adventure and explored the future of scientific exploration at U.S. Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala.

Space Camp trainees sample astronaut training by using Space Camp's special astronaut training simulators. Trainees bounce high in the air while experiencing the Microgravity Training Chair, which is similar to equipment used by astronauts training for missions to the moon. They also spin and turn in the Five Degree of Freedom Trainer, which was used by Gemini astronauts training for early spacewalks.

BHS custom t-shirts

Bay High seniors display designer shirts at a recent campus gathering. Senior Sean Edwards designed the shirt. He used the sun as the main part of the logo, choosing the sun for its universal representation of heat to depict the motto "2 Hot 2 Handle." The design on the front of the shirt shows an orange sun with yellow rays and the letters "BHS" in the center of the sun. A larger version appears on the back of the shirt with the words "Class of '92 — 2 Hot 2 Handle" centered on the sun. Beneath "Class of '92" is a downward arched lightning bolt.

"100 Years of Service"

On December 7th, the Imperial Japanese Government bombs Pearl Harbor and the U.S. is drawn into the global inferno of World War II. The Manhattan Project, which will ultimately produce the atomic bomb, is begun and President Roosevelt signs the lend-lease act.

Meanwhile in Bay St. Louis...

Local Boy Reported Safe. Official Washington Report Confirms Joyous News--Family Rejoices.

Possibly the greatest happiness on Christmas Day, 1941, enjoyed in any home in Bay St. Louis was that of the Emile Perre family who are now in receipt of news from Washington confirming the safety of their son, Leon Louis Perre, who two weeks ago was reported missing after the Japanese raid on Pearl Harbor in which so many American soldiers and sailors were lost and injured.

The telegram two weeks ago reported that Leon (Toto) Perre, who was in active duty in the Hawaiian Islands was lost. It was sent from the Bureau of Navigation at Washington and received by his parents on Dec. 15.

The residents of Bay St., Louis joined the Perre family in the good news received about their son's safety.

The Sea Coast Echo is there.
